SUGAR MARKET CLOSING ELEMENTS OF STRENGTH

INFLUENCE OF PRESENT MARKET ON BEET SOWINGS FOR NEXT SEASON—LOUISIANA CROP SHORT.

Willett & Gray's Sugar Journal of November 29, reports as follows on the raw sugar market:

Raws.—The week under review has shown much activity in the raw sugar market with continued firmness in quotations, but without any market improvement. Quite a large business was done in sugars from warehouse on the basis of 3 9/16c., duty paid, for 96 test and in Cuba centrifugals, for shipment at 2 1/2c. e. and f. for 95 test basis. Sales included Molasses sugars at 2 1/2c., sales 89 test. Everything offered at these prices up to the close of the market has been quickly taken and business closes today virtually until Monday, over the Thanksgiving holidays. Indications point to a firm reopening again next week.

The feature of the coming week will probably be the beginning of free offerings from the coming Cuba crop for shipment late December and in January. These offerings today are based on quotations of 2 3/16c. to 2 1/4 c. e. and f. for 96 test basis, but no business is yet reported.

European markets continued to advance until quotations reached 8s. 6d., since when the last few days has been more quiet and prices receded to 8s. 1d., closing, however, a shade firmer at 8s. 3 3/4d. Future delivery beets, also, advanced in sympathy with other quotations, closing with a slight reaction to basis of 8s. 7 1/4d. for May and 8s. 9d. for August.

Growing and maturing crops give no evidence of any special changes in ers) or Javass afloat, have been ordered to the United Kingdom, understood to have been sold early in the week at the floating landing terms. This disposes of all the Javass afloat, with the possible exception of one cargo shipped during October, in accordance with our cable which reported exports during October of 4000 tons.

Taken altogether, the sugar situation shows continued steadiness, without decided indications of improvement, which it may be said, are really not to be expected anywhere at this stage of the campaign, for the reason that any very considerable improvement in quotations might lead to increased sowings of the beet crop of Europe much to the detriment of the interests of sugar holders for the entire campaign. Hence, it will be noted that circulars and statistics from the other side of the water all bear the marks of extreme conservatism and a desire to avoid anything looking like optimism for the future.

This position is all very well but at the same time, when prices of sugar or any commodity have been depressed to the extreme low level, below cost of production, as sugar has been in instances, it is not an easy task to prevent a show of improvement even when such improvement is not wanted to take place at once.

From Cuba it appears that a considerable quantity of sugar has been held back on the market, 5000 tons of such sugars reached the shipping ports during the present week and must be added to the crop figures, the visible crop now showing 1,157,000 tons.
